

Enlargement of AUN Membership

The ASEAN University Network (AUN) was established in November 1995 with 13 universities from 7 member countries. With the admission of the Union of Myanmar and Lao P.D.R. into ASEAN in June 1997 and the inclusion of Kingdom of Cambodia in May 1999, ASEAN expanded to 10 member countries. Consequently, the AUN membership increased to 17 member universities as it is today.

The list of AUN member universities is as follows:

1. Universiti Brunei Darussalam, Brunei Darussalam
2. Royal University of Phnom Penh, Cambodia
3. Universitas Indonesia, Indonesia
4. Gadjah Mada University, Indonesia
5. National University of Laos, Lao P.D.R.
6. Universiti Sains Malaysia, Malaysia
7. Universiti Malaya, Malaysia
8. University of the Philippines, Philippines
9. Institute of Economics, Myanmar
10. University of Yangon, Myanmar
11. De La Salle University, Philippines
12. National University of Singapore, Singapore
13. Nanyang Technological University, Singapore
14. Burapha University, Thailand
15. Chulalongkorn University, Thailand
16. Vietnam National University, Ha Noi, Viet Nam
17. Vietnam National University, Ho Chi Minh City, Viet Nam

Due to the tremendous success of AUN activities and increasing number of requests from other regional universities to join the network, the AUN board members agree to enlarge the AUN membership.

In this regard, the AUN Secretariat is now accepting the application for the new members. Interested higher education institutions shall contact Ministry of Education (or Ministry responsible for higher education) in your country for application process and deadline. For more information, please see the Operational Guidelines for AUN Membership Enlargement.
